The School of Library and Information Science invites you to:

Achieving Relevance: The University Library in the 21st Century

A Colloquium with Bill Mayer

University Librarian, American University

Where: CUA, 132 Marist Hall (Information Commons)

When: Tuesday, November 11, 2008, 5:00 p.m.

About the Speaker:

William "Bill" A. Mayer was appointed University Librarian for American University in May 2007. From 2001-2007, Bill served as the Associate University Librarian for Information Technology and Technical Services at The George Washington University, where he was responsible for developing, implementing, and integrating information technology services across the entire library system operation. He served as an adjunct faculty for the School of Library and Information Science at CUA in 2005 and 2006. Bill began his library career at MIT and also worked at the Harvard Business School before moving to the Washington DC area. Bill is an international speaker and leader on the changing face of services in libraries, managing organizational change and the innovative applications of technology in library and university systems and he was GW's first Frye Leadership Institute Scholar in 2005.

He received his MLS degree from Simmons College in Boston.
